IN FOND MEMORY

Of Mrs. Mary A. McAleer Who Departed This Life

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 17TH, 1920

On Monday, September 20th, a sorrowing group of friends laid to rest in St. Xavier's Church yard, all that was mortal of Mrs. Mary A. McAleer, long a resident of New York City, but once a well-known member of our community. Mrs. McAleer was formerly Miss Mollie Craddock, only daughter of Capt. Benedict Craddock, and her childhood was spent at the family homestead, the beautiful estate now owned by Mr. Charles Price, near Warwick, Md. Miss Craddock was a student at the Visitation Academy, Frederick, Md., when the Civil War broke out. The school being closed during that period, Miss Craddock finished her education under private tutors at home, later making her debut into society. Tall and majestic in appearance she was a striking figure in every gathering which she entered, while her brilliant accomplishments and exquisite grace of manner won a large circle of admiring friends. As a fearless horsewoman, whether as a driver or rider, she excelled; she played the piano and sang, and for a time acted as organist and leader of the choir of St. Francis Xavier's Church; was a singularly charming hostess; her sweet smile and carassing voice captivating all who came under her spell. During the Civil War her sympathies were thrown with the South and she fearlessly championed its aims, even when on visits to Northern cities where advocates of the lost cause ran actual danger of imprisonment. From the well-stocked larder of her home numerous boxes, loaded dainties such as only Southern cooks know how to prepare, found their way to the gray-clad boys in prisons and hospitals. Her purse too, being ever ready to further the interests of the Confederacy she so passionately loved.

Her marriage to Mr. Hugh McAleer, a prominent man of New York, though himself a Marylander by birth, was the death blow to more than one manly hope, for Miss Craddock was a great belle, and counted many admires in her train. Although since then a resident of New York City and Brooklyn, Mrs. McAleer never lost touch with the environment of her maidenhood nor her love for "the old home." This devotion she passed on to her four gifted daughters who frequently visited Middletown where they formed a host of friends. Two of them, Daisy and Carrie Rose lie in the family lot at "Old Bohemia," cut off in the fullness of youth. Their death was a heavy blow to the mother who had but recently become a widow, yet she bore her burden with the resignation of one who looks beyond the things of time to those which are eternal.

The great war brought forth again the qualities of sympathy and sacrifice of her gracious nature. She devoted her days to the tasks so much in favor among women, knitting sweaters, helmets and socks for the soldier boys and cheering them with bright personal letters. Still virgous in strength, erect in bearing, "a queenly figure," to quote the words of one who had but a few months since observed her in a notable gathering, one might reasonably predict for her many more years of life. Yet who can doubt that her work was done? During the past summer, happily spent in the household of a life-long friend near Wilmington, she frequently expressed a desire to die near the scenes of her girlhood, and as if with prophetic vision, bent her thoughts more than ever upon the preparation for that long journey. So it was that the accident which was the indirect cause of her death appeared but a tool in God's hand to chisel into rarer beauty a character already beautifully molded by personal sorrow and loving service. In death she preserved the appearance of maturity unmarred by age and the sweet smile which had ever been an engaging charm.

The funeral services were conducted in the old historic church of St. Francis Xavier's, where she had been for years a prominent figure, Rev. Chas. A. Crowley being celebrand of the Mass. To her surviving daughters, Mrs. Fred Frecker and Dudley Lee Tenney, both of New York, their friends offer deepest sympathy, while bidding them mourn not as those without hope, but as for one who has "fought the good fight, has kept the faith and whose spirit has found rest."

"Where every pulse is thrilling
With rapture earth's sojourners may not know;
Where heaven's repose the very air is stilling
And peacefully life's time-toss'd currents flow.
Far out of sight, where yet the flesh infolds us
Lies the fair country where our hearts abide,
Tho of its bliss is naught more wondrous told us
Than these few words: "I shall be satisfied."

Drowned in "Silver" Lake

William Mayor, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Mayor, was drowned at "Silver" Lake on Friday afternoon, at five o'clock. The young man who was subject to epileptic spells was ill in the morning, but after he felt better went to the lake to fish. He was seen there fishing at four o'clock. When he did not return home in the evening, his parents thought he might have followed the circus that left here Friday, to Millington, Md. Finding that he was not there on Saturday the men began a search for him and dragged the lake on Sunday, finding his body. His fishing line was in his pocket and it is thought he slipped and fell into the water and was unable to climb up the bank. He was 17 years old and had only lived here a few months.

In Memoriam

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear brother, Harry T. Conard, who departed this life October 5th, 1918.

Had but I got the last fond look,
Into his loving face,
Oh! had I only got the chance
To kneel down in that place,
While your young life ebbed away,
My heart wouldnot have felt so much
The tear I shed to-day.
But when my heart is vacant
I seem to hear you say
Keep up your heart dear Sister,
We will meet again some day.

Deeply regretted and sadly missed by

HIS SISTER AND BROTHER.

Bundle Day

Our town will, of course, out of pity for the 800,000 half naked Armenian children, donate them every possible old garment they can. These poor, half-fed, half-naked little ones will freeze if America does not save them. Middletown always helps. Think, what if your happy, well-fed, warmly clad little ones were in such plight!

A new play, new costumes, new scenery will be presented by the Columbia Stock Co. at the Opera House each evening next week.

COLUMBIA STOCK CO. HERE

Why is the Columbia Stock Company like Xmas? Because they come but once a year, and they are coming next week. Starting a week's engagement on Monday next, at the Middletown Opera House, the Columbia Stock Company, will present all new plays, with brand new scenery, magnificent costumes etc. Each play will be a real production, with plenty of comedy.

On Monday night they will present, the latest play from the pen of Miss Stella May, "Easy Money", a right up to the minute play, dealing with "The Woman Suffrage" question, lots of comedy, pretty costumes, and an exceedingly pretty stage. Don't fail to see the opening play, "Easy Money" it's a dandy.

Tuesday night, a comedy drama, in 4 acts, entitled "Her Second Husband". It's a good one, has the right kind of comedy, and plenty of it, you'll like it.

Wednesday night, a high-class comedy-drama, in 4 acts, "The Dollar Power", a story of Wall street, of stocks, bonds, love and dollars. The comedy is a man from Arizona, he is honestly funny. Don't miss it.

Thursday night is a real farce comedy, "Before Breakfast", written for laughing purposes only and it fulfills that purpose, it's a roar from beginning to end.

Friday night, the big feature play, taken from the novel by Mary J. Holmes "Temptest and Sunshine". All the characters in the book will be seen in the play. The main comedy part "Mammy Sue", the old negro mammy will be played by Miss Stella May. This play will be dressed in old fashioned, civil war time costumes, very elaborate and the scenery will be something entirely out of the ordinary, in fact the whole play is made a feature in every way, shape and manner. It takes over 6 hours to put up the stage setting alone. Don't miss "Temptest and Sunshine", its one of the best plays the Columbia Stock Co., has ever produced.

Saturday night, a melodrama of today, dealing with the motor robberies that are taking place daily around New York City, showing the rounding up of the motor thiefs. Telling a heart interest story. The comedy is furnished by Mr. William Kralee in the role of the poet and Miss Stella May in the part of Mrs. O'Kelly the housekeeper of a large estate on Long Ifland, where the scenes of the play are laid. The comedy is great, the scenery fine.

Prices for this engagement will be 25c for children, 35c general admission, 50c reserved seats. Tax added.

Bought Fine Farm

Herman D. Conner, of near Middletown, purchased last week, through the Eastern States Land Co. and the Farmers Trust Co., of Newark, the well-known Buckingham Farm and complete equipment located four miles north of Newark, near Corner Ketch, in Mill Creek Hundred. The farm consists of 136 acres of which 12 is in saw timber and three in fine bearing apple orchard. The balance is practically all tillable and is a slightly rolling, mellow loam, adapted to dairying and the growing of corn, wheat, potatoes, fruit and other truck crops. The proximity of Wilmington markets and Delaware College together with the excellence of the soil are the factors that induced Mr. Conner to buy the farm. The buildings consist of a large stone house, double deck barn and ample sheds. The farm is well equipped with machinery. Mr. Conner takes possession March 1, and Mr. Buckingham expects to engage in the mercantile business at Newark.

LOST LIVES IN SILO

Two Lads Suffocated by Gas Formed by Fermentation

MASKS TO PROCURE BODIES

Samuel J. Poplin, aged 16 years, and his brother, Noah, aged 10 years, sons of Samuel D. Poplin, a Hartford county Md. farmer, were suffocated by gas in an empty silo on the farm Monday afternoon.

The silo was a double structure with communication at the bottom. One of the structures had been filled with ensilage a few days ago, from which deadly gas, caused by fermentation accumulated in the bottom of the empty silo.

While Noah was playing on top of the silo he dropped his shoe inside. Procuring a rope the lad started to let himself down. When half way down he cried out he was blind. His father, who was holding on to the rope, thought the boy was confused and called to him to come up. He received no response, however, the boy falling into the silo unconscious from the poisonous gas.

The older brother, Samuel, volunteered to go down the rope after his brother. After waiting some minutes and not hearing from Samuel, the father summoned help. A neighbor, with a handkerchief over his face, entered the silo through a side door, found the bodies of the two boys, grasped one of them, but before he could reach the opening was forced to release his hold, as he felt himself being overcome by the fumes.

A corn blower was pressed into service, attached to the top of the silo, and the gas blown out through the side door. Gas masks were procured by neighbors, who entered the silo and carried out the lifeless bodies of the two boys. They had been dead for two hours.

The bridesmaid was Miss Rachel Shockley, a sister of the groom, who wore net over pink satin and carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds. The best man was Samuel Lane, Jr., a brother of the bride. No Scarcity of Coal This Winter

All wants of coal consumers will be adequately met before winter sets in, the National Coal Association declares in a review of the coal situation throughout the country.

"Householders need not feel it necessary to fill bins with the entire winter's supply at this time," said the statement issued by the association. "By taking only enough coal now to tide them over December 1, the entire situation will work out with no great privation to anyone".

THREE SOCIALISTS REFUSED SEATS

Expelled by the New York State Assembly

THE REMAINING TWO RESIGN

Have Taken Cases To The People, Who Are Judges And Juries, They Assert.

Albany, N. Y.—The assembly of the New York State Legislature, by a vote of 90 to 45 in each case, expelled three of the five Socialist members—Louis Waldman and August Claessens, of New York, and Charles Solomon, of Kings county—and voted 87 to 48 to permit Samuel A. Dewitt and Samuel Orr, Socialist members from the Bronx to retain their seats. The two last named, however, after a vote to reinstate Waldman had been lost, 81 to 52, took the floor in turn and verbally tendered their resignations.

The proceedings were not unlike those that occupied virtually all of March 31, and into the early morning of April 1, at the last session, when all five were barred from their seats, except that tonight the dramatic situations and excitement that attended the first ouster were lacking.

The resolution calling for the expulsion of the five Socialists was introduced by Colonel Ranson H. Gillett, Republican, Columbia county, and the judiciary committee, to which it was referred, reported the resolution back to the House for consideration without recommendations. During the day a move on the part of several assemblymen resulted in Assemblyman Cuvilier, Democrat, of New York, presenting three amendments, which provided for the unseating of Waldman, Claessens and Solomon. Later Assemblyman Wells, Republican, of Kings, offered two additional amendments, to provide for the unseating of Orr and Dewitt.

Conditions Changed.

Assemblyman Louis M. Martin, Republican, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, which conducted the trial of the Socialists, said that the five men were expelled because of certain conditions that existed in their party at that time. Since then, he said the Socialist party had eliminated all the grounds upon which the Judiciary Committee, or a majority of it, recommended the expulsion of the men last spring, but now they are members of a party that has complied with the law and the Constitution of the United States.

At this point Assemblyman Amos asked Mr. Martin if the men were originally expelled simply because they were members of the Socialist party. Mr. Martin replied that that was so insofar as the findings of the Judiciary Committee were concerned; that from the evidence adduced the committee could find no personal guilt. Because of this and the changes that had been made in the constitution of the Socialist party. Mr. Martin said he could not vote consistently at this time to unseat the men.

Minority Leader Donohue called attention to the fact that the counsel who acted for the judiciary committee at the trial and who were paid $100,000 for their services, had declared that the changes that have taken place in the Socialist party constitution made it legally impossible to expel the Socialists from the extraordinary session."

Millerand's election was conceded almost from the hour it was announced Deschanel would resign. It was made certain when the two chambers of the National Assembly in caucus gave Millerand a great majority for the nomination.

MAKERS WILL SELL DIREGT TO PUBLIC

Women's Wear Prodrurers In Combine to Cut Prices

TIRED OF DODGING CHARGES

Will Establish Permanent Exposition At Which Goods Can Be Displayed For Inspection.

Philadelphia.—Announcing that they are combining to smash high prices and remove the improper stigma of profiteers, 100 manufacturers of women's wear in Philadelphia have organized the Manufacturers' Board of Trade. The headquarters is at 731 Arch street and plans are being made to rent a seven-story building to house a permanent exposition at which goods will be sold direct to the consumer.

The principle is in line with price reductions all over the country and is the first actual step taken in Phildelphia.

"We feel," said Eugene Loeb, of Loeb Bros., president of the new body, "that Henry Ford has the right idea when he says that profits must be increased through greater production.

"The public is at the end of its reckless extravagances and it is clearly up to the manufacturers to give more for the prices asked or see their sales fall off.

"We want no business depression that will influence any wage reductions or lay-off of workers. And in our judgment, the best way to prevent this is to stimulate a wider distribution of manufactured products, thereby influencing an economic situation which will permit manufacturers to reduce prices and at the same time develop enough business to keep factories going full strength and workers busy on full-time schedules.

"Charges have frequently been made in Congressional investigations by trade bodies and by individuals that the manufacturer is responsible for the high cost of living, particularly in articles of women's wear. Those charges are not based on a knowledge of the facts, and have hit the manufacturer to such an extent that he is up against a hard proposition when it comes to a point of figuring on consumer demands. The average manufacturer doesn't know how long women will continue to demand tricotine or tricolette or whether they soon will adopt the paper clothing fad because of existing prices.

"We are tired dodging profiteering charges, and we figure the best way to make the public understand where the responsibility really lies is for the manufacturers to take the public into their confidence and show consumers that, with their co-operation, we are willing at least to lend a helping hand in knocking the props from under living costs."

Products of these makers are now being kept sold to consumers at manufacturers' prices. Records are being kept of the goods purchased from each of the manufacturers and at the end of the year a dividend will be declared, after overhead expenses have been taken care of. That dividend, it is said, will go directly to the consumer. It will approximate 5 per cent., according to Mr. Loeb.

BOY'S RIB STOPS BULLET.

Shot By Playmate, He Walks Home—Expected To Recover.

Winsted, Conn.—A rib saved the life of William Ganci, 12-year-old son of Mrs. Anna Ganci, of Canaan, who was accidentally shot by a playmate, Clayton Hart, Jr., also 12 years old, in Canaan.

A .32-calibre bullet entered his left chest over the heart, and, hitting the rib, followed the bone around the left side and lodged below the arm. The boys were playing in the Hart home when they discovered a loaded pistol in a bureau drawer. Hart was handling the revolver when it was discharged.

Ganci, after walking to his own home near by, was brought to the county hospital. His recovery is expected.

Imitation "Ford" parts are being sold by many mail order houses, down-town stores and garages to unsuspecting Ford owners as "Ford" parts. But they are not Genuine Ford parts. MUST BE SELF-SUSTAINING

DR. Albert H. Snowden, in the September "World's Markets" declares that Australia will soon be the "last great West" and that the world will have to turn to that insular continent for its supplies of meats and wool. By reason of climatic conditions, which cut overhead expenses included in the construction of barns, storing and feeding of hay, etc., there is an "astonishing reduction in the overhead expense of sheep and stock-raising as compared with costs in the "United States," says Dr. Snowden; and he outlines the advantages possessed by Australia in the marketing of wool, fruits, wheat, vegetables, etc. The Democratic policy would urge our purchase from Australia of such products, permitting the home industries to languish because we could buy more cheaply from that source. But would we not be in a pretty fix if our own supplies were dimished by free trade and a war with Japan would be followed by a Japanese blockade of Australian-American trade?

PLAYING A DOUBLE ROLE

COX was nominated as an anti-Wilson man. He was the favorite of the anti-Wilson faction of the Democratic party. In his usual role of trying to play both ends, Cox immediately knelt at the Wilson throne and received the Wilson approval of his endosement of the League of Nations. Now that Maine has gone on record overwhelmingly against Wilsonism, Cox begins to realize that he made a mistake in seeking the favor of an unpopular autocrat. He might fool the Tammany crowd at San Francisco, and President Wilson at the White House, but he cannot fool a very considerable number of voters during the campaign that ends November 2d. He can't fool all the people all the time.

Infinite Variety at Geneva.

Those who had the rare pleasure of looking in on a plenary session of the international woman's conference at Geneva were, in a few instances, unconvinced that out of such a variegated group unity of action and opinion could be possible, writes Alice La Maziere in Figaro. There were delegates from all parts of the world—blonde and heavy Scandinavians, robust and energetic Americans, frail and brunette Spaniards, Italians and Greeks, expressionless and saffron-colored Japanese and Hindus in over-embroidered gowns. And there were Frenchwomen despite the fact that though France has marched at the head of so many movements of emancipation, it will he a long while before she enfranchises her daughters. And we must not forget the delegate from Iceland, who journeyed for 30 days to be with us and came dressed in festival costume.

But Lady Astor, our good colleague from England, was the charm and grace of the conference. What will come of it all? Notwithstanding the opposition the women are meeting in certain countries—Spain, Italy, Switzerland, Turkey, France—the day is not far distant when we will act as a body in moral, political, educational and domestic questions. And our voice shall be heard when the specter of war threatens to arise.

The War Horse.

Mud-spattered, high power motor cars, careering along military roads, replaced foam-flecked chargers in the work of carrying generals and their staffs in the World war when it came to the actual business of a campaign. No panting charger carried a Wellington from a town 20 miles away—a motorcar did the work in 20 minutes without exciting comment. But the horse was not entirely robbed of his glorious place in the war. Motorcars might do the work better in actual campaigns, but when it came to the pomp and panoply the horse was not entirely robbed of his glory. An army headed by a fat general cuddled in the deep upholstery of a mere machine would not stir the imagination. He must sit on a prancing, arch-necked steed and return the cheers with sharp salutes while handling his mettlesome mount. So it was that the high officers of the allies had horses for ceremonial occasions.

Warning to Airmen Who Smoke.

An airman who drops a lighted pipe from his plane is responsible for any damage his pipe may cause. This was decided at a moot, or discussion, in Gray's Inn hall, London, recently, at which Justice Darling presided.

Mr. Justice Darling, in the course of his judgment, said that for an airman to take a lighted pipe and smoke it when flying at a point where if it fell it would fall by gravitation to the earth instead of to the moon, to allow it to fall or not to prevent it to fall—that was in itself prima facie negligence. If the pipe fell to earth and set fire to a haystack or did any other damage, the person injured was entitled to an action to recover damages for negligence.—Brooklyn Eagle.

OMITTING BETSY

By MILDRED WHITE.

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

Betsy started out to be Alan Wendel's stenographer.

But Elizabeth, coming to her husband's office one day, promptly put a stop to that.

"It isn't that I am jealous, Alan," she frankly said, "but there is something so appealing, so strangely winsome about that little creature that I just won't have her near you all the time. Why, I am seized with a desire to protect and befriend her myself, every time she looks at me."

"Then I guess it will be up to you to carry out your desire," her husband dryly remarked, "for when my old friend, her father's lawyer, sent Betsy Blair to me with a letter of introduction, it was with the request that I obtain suitable employment for her."

So Elizabeth Wendel with one of her generous impulses, carried the young stranger home to act as her own social secretary, and then, finding that there was not work enough in that line to sufficiently occupy Betsy's time, she suggested tentatively, and with veiled eagerness, that Betsy take charge of her own two active and difficult children. John and Jane, were Elizabeth's problem and to the mother's surprise the girl gladly accepted the charge.

"John and Jane and I love each other so much now," Betsy said, "that it is hard for us to keep apart."

Thereafter, as far as Elizabeth's maternal problem was concerned, she was happily freed from responsibility.

But Betsy had so many would-be suitors that at first Elizabeth lived in dread of losing her dependable one, but Betsy's avowal, though unusual coming from one of such charm, was sincere.

"Really," Betsy declared, "I don't want any of them; I will not marry unless I meet a man that I cannot possibly live without, which," added Betsy piously, "defers the evil day."

Elizabeth smiled relievedly afterward.

"The separation of Betsy's parents before both died," she told her husband, "is responsible for her aversion to marriage."

It was upon the evening of the curate's arrival that Elizabeth sought Alan Wendel in his smoking room.

"Your sister and my sister have come," she announced. "They are in their rooms dressing for dinner. Of course you know that both the girls, with the bigger half of this congregation, are in love with Philip Dare. And Oh! Alan, what shall we do—with Betsy? You know very well that every man in sight naturally turns to Betsy like the needle to the pole."

"If you feel that way about it," her husband smilingly suggested, "why not go to the girl with your problem? Tell her to make herself scarce."

"It is not," Elizabeth loyally defended, "that Betsy looks for conquest. Really she is the most retiring girl I ever knew. She just cannot seem to avoid it. You remember when Helen's admirer was here, Betsy put on a shabby old frock and went to picking apples away back in the garden, and when Mr. Raymond took it into his head to stroll back beneath the trees a hard apple hit him in the eye and though his eye was swollen black, and though Betsy when she scrambled down from the tree was both disheveled and dirty—it didn't make a bit of difference. Mr. Raymond haunted the girl afterward until she was obliged to send him away, and Helen was quite forgotten. She will stay away like an angel, I know, when Reverend Philip comes, but he always insists on having the children down at prayers—"

Alan grinned unsympathetically.

"Well, have the children come down?" he said, "but omit 'Betsy, the Blighter.'"

Elizabeth had arranged the study as a suitable place for family service Here the popular young curate would have his study room, and Betsy, the agreeable, was warned never to use the side stairs.

Several times she had glimpsed with her wistful, wondering eyes, Reverend Philip's tall and graceful figure from her window. Resignedly Betsy dressed her small charges for evening prayers and then to make final her refusal to accompany them, she donned a blue and gold kimono and loosened her waving hair. Still as she urged them downward from the top of the stair, John snatched coaxingly his loved one's hand, Betsy's little flat slippers found no holding on the shiny matting—and so she fell a fluttering, blue and gold butterfly being, straight to the young rector's feet. He was alone in the study as she lay a huddled heap before the mahogany stand. And when he would have helped her to arise, Betsy waved the young man back.

"My ankle is broken, I think," she said quietly. And so it was. The doctor found the painful break after Philip Dare had carried the girl very carefully, and very tenderly, up the matting stair to her own sitting room It was here that Elizabeth Wendel and her husband found the two, returning later from a long drive.

"I would not have gone down," Betsy whispered, "if I had not fallen."

Elizabeth smiled resignedly. "You kept your promise, dear," she said, "but somebody else has fallen—in love—I can see that already."

"Well," remarked Betsy, "as for that, if I had known what Philip was going to be like, I would never have given my promise."

NEW FALL STYLES

Light and Airy Colors Is Prediction for Season.

Designers Are Endeavoring to Eliminate Lines Which Will Give Wearer Broad Appearance.

Tea time in fashionable places is a most fascinating hour this time of the year, as we are all tired of sport clothes and this affords an opportunity of seeing something decidedly new in little afternoon frocks, according to a fashion authority.

It is going to continue to be a fall season of light airy colors—cream lace for afternoon wear and black lace for evening wear—quite the reverse of what we have been accustomed to.

A charming frock worn at tea by a blonde miss was deep ecru pussy willow taffeta and an overdress of fishnet lace in cream color. A wide ribbon girdle with immense bow and streamer ends in the back was of wide ribbon in light tobacco brown. The whole dress carried three tones of the lighter shades of brown beautifully blended. The hat worn was one of the newer models, a medium-sized rolling brim. It was a brown duvetyn, beautifully hand embroidered in several oriental shades. The crown, semi-Tam O'Shanter effect, was of silver metallic embroidery trimmed on one side with a soft bow of glossy brown satin ribbon.

Black lace certainly reigns supreme for semievening affairs.

Whether a coat is long or short, wide or narrow at the bottom, or a wrap of conservative rich velvet or any other popular material, the designers are endeavoring to eliminate any lines which will give the wearer a broad appearance.

The majority of suit coats are almost knee length, many unbelted and slightly flaring at the bottom, but not rippled, although a few show pointed insets of contrasting materials.

One suit was most novel, showing a cape instead of a coat. The skirt was made on plain, straight lines, the material being rusty gold-colored duvetyn, the bottom finished with a five-inch band of the same material in dull delft blue duvetyn and around the bottom was a band of the gold-colored duvetyn put on underneath as a facing and it had no other lining. The large draped collar was of the same material as the skirt proper.

Suit collars generally are not as large as last season. The choker types coming in strongly, especially if made of fur, are pulled through a loop, giving a double-breasted effect, but on capes they appear very large and draped quite full, whether made of fur or material.

While set-in sleeves predominate, many are showing the kimono and wrap style. Raglan or semiraglan with a single seam in the back or front, or one piece are also found. The bell-shape bottoms are not neglected this season.

WITH ONLY SELF-STITCHING

A snugly collared and belted tailleur with no trimming except self-stitching which will hold its own against the more elaborate but not more fascinating models.

FASHIONS IN BRIEF

Jet is much used with tulle.

Dolman coats are trimmed with two-toned braid.

Smart hats for children are of taffeta and satin.

Coat sleeves are often kimono style, wide and long.

Tams and closely draped turbans will be worn this fall.

Ladder stitching is effective on white lingerie blouses.

French hats are elaborately trimmed with ribbons and feathers.

One of the very popular styles of the coming season is the redingote type dress.

Some of the newest bathing sandals are merely soles, with two sets of bright colored ribbons laced about the ankle to hold them on.

Upon dresses of all varieties which are not subjected to tub cleansing raffia is used. Satin and serge especially lend themselves to this sort of embroidery.

Pile fabrics such as duvetyn, plush and velours abound, and leading colors are gray, brown, taupe, and navy. Novelty color favorites seem to be hectic tomato hues and turquoise blue.

A new millinery model particularly becoming to a brunette has a circlet of ostrich feathers in attractive shades of bronze and green and blue, over which falls a lace veil in tete de negre.

Black marquisette has been successfully introduced as a substitute for chiffon and georgette. One frock of this material is a series of narrow tucks and plaits which are repeated in blouse, sleeve and skirt.

HAT AND BAG MADE TO MATCH

Large black panne velvet hat; trimming appliqued design of duvetyn; colors, green, orange, sand and blue. The facing of hat is green duvetyn and the bag is to match the hat.

Blouse in Favor for Autumn

Popular Garment Promises to Flourish as Never Before—Dresses and Gowns Passe.

Dresses and gowns are utterly passe. But if milady feels that such garments have their place in the fall wardrobe, she must see to it that her one-piece gown is so camouflaged that it appears as a separate skirt and blouse, for fashion decrees that blouses shall flourish as never before in this coming season.

Manufacturers and retailers explain this fad as another broadside at fashion dictating Paris. For Paris has long sniffed at the American invention of separate skirt and waist.

New York women have hailed the blouse year with delight. The avenue shop windows are full of these "uppers" of all kinds and prices. The slip-on blouse continues to be first in popularity, while bolero and tie-back effects are very good. The long tunics and Russian models are in the minority, although this past season effect is partly carried out by the moyen age blouses, which fit the figure like a tight bodice or basque to the hips and then flare out over full plaited or gathered skirt. The old style tucked-in blouses are so completely out of the running that skirts have been sewed to inner camisoles over which the blouse is worn.

Another quaint exception to the over model is the stern 1860 blouse. These are fashioned of heavy silk, tightly fitted to the body and button primly up the center front, way to the ears.

A great majority of the Fifth avenue blouses are fairly opulent with color and material. Their purpose in life is to liven up the rather dull fall suits and coats. Favorite shades are reseda, green, rust and chow-brown, peacock and turquoise blue, mahogany, canary, henna and black and white. The latter combination, especially, is having a heavy run.

"Molded Frock" New Mode

Paris Style Originators Plan Smart Attire—Corsets Are Only Slightly Curved.

According to the fashion experts of Paris, the "molded frock" is among the smartest of the new fashions. But by "molded" we do not mean a revival of the "hour glass" figure—that unnatural over-emphasized fashion which made women look as though they had been poured into their clothes and then left to harden. Mme. Magnier, the famous corset maker of Paris, announces that corsets will be "only slightly curved, following the natural lines." And from that we gather that the frocks will tend in the same direction.

And several of these "molded frocks" have already been seen at the opera, worn by the smartest society leaders of Paris. The corsage is straight across the top, supported by a strand of brilliants or perhaps a narrow silver ribbon, and the tissue itself is carried down over one hip in an unbroken line and across the front, with a fold or two of drapery at the left side. The whole effect is exquisitely graceful and has the priceless charm of simplicity.—Harper's Bazar.

Styles in Evening Headdress.

For the matron whose years will warrant it, a headdress of glistening jet will be very attractive for evening wear, especially at formal affairs. Another popular mode is the bandeau which is adorned in the front or at the sides with waving strands of paradise. Some women prefer a velvet band elaborated with small clusters of burnt goose. These are usually placed at the front and are arranged in graduating mode from the sides to the center where some added attraction may repose. This may be a jewele motif on the velvet or even embroidery gay with colorful silks and metal threads.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 3

THE BIRTH AND CHILDHOOD OF JESUS.

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 2: 1-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt call his name Jesus; for he shall save his people from their sins.—Matt. 1:21.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Isa. 7:14-16; Micah, 5:2; Luke 1 and 2.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Wise Men Visit the Child Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Child Jesus Escapes From a Wicked King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Coming of the King.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The King Comes as a Little Child.

Since we now have six months of study in the Gospel according to Matthew, every teacher should grasp the book as a whole and present each lesson in its relation to the central purpose of the book. The central theme of Matthew is Jesus Christ the King—the fulfiller of the Messianic hope.

I. The Birth of the King (1:18-25).

The Messiah was to be the seed of a woman—the son of a virgin (Gen. 3:15; Isa. 7:14). This was fulfilled in the birth of Jesus. The genealogy as given in Matthew 1:1-17 shows his legal right to the throne; but had he been that only, he could not have been the Savior from sin. He must be both human and divine (Isa. 9:7). The Messiah was begotten by the Holy Ghost and born of the Virgin Mary, thus becoming Immanuel, which term means in all its fulness, God for us; God with us; God in us.

II. The Magi Seek Israel's King (2:1, 2).

The King had a most heartless reception. The kingdom was not ready for him. His advent was heralded by a star which guided souls from a foreign nation to seek and worship him, pouring out their gifts to him. These wise men were either Arabian or Persian astrologers, students of the stars. The appearance of an unusual star attracted their attention. Perhaps they were acquainted with the famous prophecy of Balaam (Num. 24:17). Doubtless through the influence of the Jews who remained in Chaldea, or the direct influence of Daniel extending to this time, they had become acquainted with the hope of a Messiah. The light they had was dim, but they lived up to the best they had. To those who act upon the best light they have, God always gives more. To those who refuse to act upon the knowledge given, God not only refuses to give more, but brings into confusion that which they already possess (Matt. 25: 28).

III. Herod Seeking to Kill the King (vv. 3-8).

The news brought by the Magi struck terror to Herod's heart. He was not alone in this, for all Jerusalem was troubled with him. The news ought to have brought joy. A glimpse at the social customs in and about Jerusalem at that time, will enable us to understand why this news brought uneasiness to the people. They were living in the greatest of luxury. Fine dresses, sumptuous feasts, fine houses, etc., led to gross immorality. We can thus readily see why Herod and all Jerusalem should be troubled. They did not want a Savior who would save them from their sins; they wanted to continue in them. Herod demanded of the priests and scribes information as to where Christ should be born. They soon were able to tell him, showing that they had a technical knowledge of the Scriptures, but no heart for the Savior set forth therein. The luxuriousness of the wealthy, the frivolities of the fashion-loving, and the gross immoralities to which they lead, make Jesus Christ unwelcome in many quarters today.

IV. The King Found (vv. 9-12.).

The Magi having obtained the desired information, started immediately to find the King. As soon as they left the city, the star which had guided them from the East appeared again to lead them on. When they found him, they worshiped him. Note God's overruling providence in all this. Hundreds of years before, the Prophet said that Christ should come forth from Bethlehem (Micah 5:2). God so ordered that Mary should be brought to the city to give birth to Christ. God ordered that the Magi should depart another way, thereby defeating Herod's wicked purpose. The gifts of these wise men, God put into the hands of Joseph and Mary before going to Egypt. Doubtless they served a good purpose in meeting their expenses during their stay there.

V. The King Protected (vv. 13-15).

To escape Herod's wicked aim, God directed Joseph to take Mary and the child Jesus and flee to Egypt. In obedience to the heavenly vision, he went and remained until Herod's death.

In Giving Alms.

In giving of thine alms inquire not so much into the person, as his necessity. God looks not so much on the merits of him that requires, as to the manner of him that relieves. If the man deserve not, thou hast given to humanity.—Quarles.

Think of Our Own Sins.

So long as we are full of self we are shocked at the faults of others. Let us think often of our own sins, and we shall be lenient to the sins of others.—Fenelon.

Drying Decanters.

An excellent and quick method for drying the inside of decanters, vinegar bottles, etc., which are in daily use: After washing out thoroughly with hot water, turn upside down and allow very hot water to run over the outside about a minute. This dries the inside quickly without leaving marks. Hold them under the hot water tap. This method has been known to be used for years without a mishap. For all bottles dry out with twisted tissue paper.—Exchange.

GOOD GROCER GOOD MEDICINE

An East Nashville Grocer Says He Has Used Black-Draught for Years, Whenever Troubled With Torpid Liver.

East Nashville, Tenn.—"You ask me about Black-Draught. It is without doubt the best liver medicine made, and I don't believe I could get along without it," declared Mr. W. N. Parsons, recently.

Mr. Parsons, who is a prominent grocer at 243 North First street, says further: "I take it (Black-Draught) for sour stomach, headache, bad liver, indigestion, and all other troubles that are the result of a torpid liver. I have known and used it for years, and can and do highly recommend it to every one. I won't go to bed without it in the house. It will do all it claims to do. I can't say enough for it."

Thedford's Black-Draught, which has been in successful use for more than 70 years, is a medicine especially adapted to the treatment of many liver troubles. It has proved helpful to thousands and thousands of persons suffering from stomach and liver complaints, and should be helpful to you.

Black-Draught is easy to take and has not the bad after-effects, so common with many mineral drugs.

Most good druggists sell it.—Adv.

Could Leave It to Him.

"I must break the engagement, and yet I don't want people to say I jilted him," said Maud.

"I have it. Invite him to tea," suggested her friend.

"Yes?"

"Make some of your tea biscuits."

"Yes."

"And he will break it himself."

INVENTIVE GENIUS ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA AND DANGER

Doctors' Favorite Medicine Now Purified and Refined from All Objectionable Effects. "Calotabs"—the New Name.

What will human ingenuity do next? Smokeless powder, wireless telegraphy, horseless carriages, colorless iodine, tasteless quinine,—now comes nauseless calomel. The new improvement called "Calotabs" is now on sale at drugstores.

For biliousness, constipation and indigestion the new calomel tablet is a practically perfect remedy, as evidenced by the fact that the manufacturers have authorized all druggists to refund the price if the customer is not "perfectly delighted" with Calotabs. One tablet at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no nausea, no griping, no salts. By morning your liver is thoroughly cleansed and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite. Eat what you please—no danger—go about your business.

Calotabs are not sold in bulk. Get an original package, sealed. Price, thirty-five cents.—(adv.)

A Nursery King.

"Old King Cole," beloved of the nursery, was a British king who lived about A. D. 300. His accession was hailed with joy. To this day a large earthwork at Colchester is called "King Cole's Kitchen."

If your eyes smart or feel scalded, Roman Eye Balsam applied upon going to bed is just the thing to relieve them.—Adv.

Airplanes to Chase Bandits.

The Chinese government plans to use airplanes to locate bandits and smugglers, transport precious metals from the interior to coast ports and explore for new railroad and highway routes.

Unnatural Flavor.

A girl from Gotham was visiting a friend "up the state," who was trying to run a model chicken farm. The girl was much interested in all that was shown her, particularly a line of incubators, in front of which she made this observation:

"So you have incubators? Very nice, indeed; but I am afraid that artificial chickens can never taste like natural ones."

MOTHER!

Accept "California" Syrup of Figs only—look for the name California on the package, then you are sure your child is having the best and most harmless physic for the little stomach, liver and bowels. Children love its fruity taste. Full directions on each bottle. You must say "California."—Adv.

A New Definition.

"What is a widow?" asked the teacher of a Sunday school class, the subject of the day's lesson being the widow of Ham.

There was silence until she nodded to a little boy on her left, and said: "You know what a widow is, don't you?" for she knew that the little boy's mother was one.

"Yes'm," he answered, "it's a lady what takes in washing!"—Edinburgh Scotsman.

BOCHEE'S SYRUP

A Harmless Soothing, Healing Remedy for Coughs and Colds.

Here is a remedy for coughs, colds, bronchitis, throat irritation, and especially for lung troubles, that has been sold all over the civilized world in many thousands of households for the last fifty-four years. Its merits have stood this test of time and use, and surely no test could be more potent or convincing. It gives the patient with weak and inflamed lungs a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectoration in the morning. Try one bottle, accept no substitute. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere.—Adv.

Wasted Effort.

Vice Presidential Candidate Coolidge was commenting on a rival political party. "It reminds me," he said, "of the little boy who hurt his finger.

"'How did you do it?' cried the anxious mother.

"'With a hammer,' sobbed Willie.

"'But I didn't hear you cry.'

"'I didn't know you were in the house,' was the reply."

A few tablets give almost immediate stomach relief and shortly the stomach is corrected so you can eat favorite foods without fear. Large case costs only 60 cents at drug store. Absolutely harmless and pleasant. Millions helped annually. Best stomach corrective known—Adv.

The Human Dud.

While he was making his way about his platoon one dark night a sergeant heard the roar of a "G, I Can" overhead and dived into a shell hole. It was already occupied by a private, who was hit full in the wind by the noncom.'s head. A moment's silence—a long, deep breath, and then:

"Good lord, is that you, sarge?"

"That's me."

"Thank heaven! I was just waiting for you to explode!"

Indigestion produces disagreeable and sometimes alarming symptoms. Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills stimulate the digestive processes to function naturally.—Adv.

The Main Question.

"Should Lefthook or Plexus win that prize fight?"

"Lefthook should have the best of the argument."

"I am not interested in who has the best of the argument. How about the fight?"—Detroit Free Press.

It isn't necessary to spend money in advertising your troubles; simply tell them to a gossip.

MORO A DANGEROUS FANATIC

Believes Eternal Bliss to Be His if He Meets Death While Killing Christians.

The psychology of Mohammedanism is incomprehensible to persons reared in the atmosphere and teachings of American Christianity. With us the separation of church and state is as much a matter of course as the air we breathe. With us suicide is immoral and the killing of an unbeliever is a crime punishable with death. The Mohammedan has no conception of ecclesiastical and state law. There is only one law, the Koran; and while in fact the priest and the ruler may be different persons, they are different only in a functional way, like a judge and an executive in our government. The spiritual ruler is also temporal ruler, as was Mohammed in his day. The killing of Christians is a virtue that merits everlasting bliss in paradise. The martyrs of the early Christian church burned with no more consuming ardor than the humble, ignorant Mohammedan peasants who swear before the priest that they will go forth and devote their lives to killing Christians. Mohammedans who have sworn to kill Christians are called in the Philippines juramentados, from the Spanish, meaning one who has sworn or taken an oath. Up to a decade ago it was no uncommon occurrence in Jolo for a Moro fanatic to conceal his bolo knife, or kris, in a basket of fruit until he had passed the guard at the gate of the walled town, then draw his blade and cut right and left, killing man, woman or child, with perfect impartiality, until a bullet from the guard stopped his advance. It was this indomitable will to kill that gave the Christian Filipino his mortal fear of the Moro in times past.—O. Garfield Jones, in Asia.

HAVE TO WAIT TO UNLOAD

Shipping Congestion at London Docks Said to Be of an Extraordinary Character.

A writer to the London Times describes the Victoria and Albert docks at Tilbury as being "crowded to their fullest capacity with big ships," many of which "look absolutely dead for the simple reason that they can not be unloaded because there is nowhere to put their cargoes." Of ships carrying Australian meat it is said to be "a common thing to wait anything up to a month for a berth and to lie another month tied up against the wharf, unloading and reloading." Inefficiency of labor is in a large degree responsible, for the average discharging output per shift of 13 men in a nine-hour day has been reduced from 100 to 63 tons. The cause is partly the loss of many good men in the war, partly loafing on the job to make work for as many men as possible. Congestion of the ports is attributed to state control over essential imports, to state control over railroads, and to reduction of the hours of labor. By these means the carrying power of ships has been reduced at least 30 per cent below pre-war standards.

Real Neighborliness.

An interesting experiment in neighborliness has been carried on for nearly a year in a part of Toledo which is populated almost exclusively by Polish immigrants and their descendants. The Polish Business Men's club of the district conceived the idea that the needy Polish families in the community should be taken care of in a neighborly way, rather than by charity organizations. The latter were requested not to extend aid in the district, but to notify the club, so that it might meet all emergencies. This is not done from the club treasury, however. An investigation is made to determine whether the need is for money, supplies or work, and the other residents of the block, including the tradesmen, are then informed that their neighbors need their assistance, which, the club reports, is always forthcoming.

Immunity From Whooping Cough.

Dr. T. Luzzati of Rome was called to three different houses, in each of which a child had begun to cough. In each case he suspected that it might be whooping cough; therefore, as a precaution, he vaccinated all the brothers and sisters with an anti-whooping-serum. Ten days later his suspicion was confirmed by the typical whoop, but in no case did one of the other children catch the disease, though no attempt at isolation was made.

In reporting this to Policlinics (Rome) Doctor Luzzati says he has found no benefit from vaccination once the disease has become pronounced.

Curing Intolerance of Milk.

Dr. Genegrier reports to the French Pediatrics society that a newly born infant which could not take milk in any form was cured by three subcutaneous injections, one every other day, of 8, 16 and 30 minims of sterilized cow's milk. The third injection was followed by violent vomiting and rigors, but from this moment the baby tolerated milk by the mouth in progressive doses, beginning with five and ending with 850 grams a day.

National Amenities.

England will return to the state of Kentucky a flag which was captured from Kentucky volunteers at the battle of the Thames in Michigan in the war of 1812. The Kentucky legislature has appropriated money to send to England a commissioner who will bring back the flag. This commissioner, James Buchanan of Louisville, is a descendant of the commander of the Kentucky troops in the battle.

Grip

Grip usually starts just the same as a cold with a watery discharge from the nose. You are much more likely to contract the grip when you have a cold For that reason when grip is prevalent you should go to bed as soon as you feel that you are taking cold and stay in bed until fully recovered which should not be long if you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Three days in bed now is better than three weeks later on.

Traveling Libraries

At a meeting of the State Library Commission in Dover, on September 16, statistics from the report of the librarian for the past six months show there were four hundred requests for traveling libraries and for books, and that 3320 volumes were loaned. During that time forty-three libraries were sent to schools, three to public libraries, nine to other organizations and six hundred and ninety-eight books were loaned to individuals.

The directors of the book wagon routes in the three counties report that from January 1st, 1920, until September 1st, they made one hundred and forty-four trips, visited nine hundred and eighty-five homes and loaned 20,153 books on the routes.

Winners to Oxford Course

William Paul Hamilton and Christopher L. Ward, Jr., both of Wilmington, were Monday receiving congratulations on winning Rhodes' scholarships at Oxford, England, awards for which were announced by Professor Frank Aydelotte, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and American secretary of the Rhodes trustees. To Hang October 29th

Convicted of a felonious assault upon Mrs. Emma Talley, a 58 year old white woman at Dexter's Corner, a few miles from Smyrna, on July 22d, Ernest Thomas, negro, was convicted in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, Monday afternoon, and was sentenced to be hung at the New Castle County Workhouse on October 29th. The condemned man maintained a nonchalent attitude during the reading of his sentence but collapsed when brought to the workhouse. He has been placed under a special guard in a cell with a special lock.

Liquor Made on Hartly Farm

In the raid made recently by Federal Prohibition Officer Howard at the farm of Durett, near Hartly, where 400 quarts of liquor were seized, it has been ascertained that a part of the liquor seized had been made on the farm, the ingredients having been in two large trunks found on the day of the raid. The bottles in which the liquor was poured and sealed as if from bond, also came in the trunks.

Model Twenty-One Forty Five

Five Passenger Touring Car

Beauty and capacity are combined in the new 1921 Buick five-passenger Touring Car. Designed to meet the many uses of a car of this type, it lends to the needs of the business man and his family, the comforts of the traveling man or those whose business takes them on long trips. This car has many improvements over those of previous years, but it is still, and always will be powered by that famour BUICK VALVE-IN-HEAD MOTOR.

Also Sampson Tractor you can see one working at Mr. J. B. Donovan's.
